

Information Sheet for the Health Professions Pre-Admission Entrance Test (TEAS)

Why are students being tested?

Lakeland Community College and the Health Technologies faculty want students to succeed in their goals. When students perform poorly in basic skills, their chances of success in a health science program are very poor. Preadmission testing is an assessment to evaluate a student’s ability to be successful in allied health. Students who achieve a successful score have a greater chance of success.

What is the allied health preadmission test?

The health preadmission test is TEAS (“Test of Essential Academic Skills”) which is administered by Assessment Technologies Institute, or ATI.

Who must be tested?

See chart below to identify the appropriate health program preadmission entrance test requirement.

The test is waived for:

- High-school-option students
- Students who have completed an Associate of Science degree, Associate of Applied Science in Allied Health, and those who have completed any bachelor’s degree from an accredited college.

What is the minimum score?

Each department determines criteria for admission, and some departments do not require a minimum score. Minimum scores are subject to change based on numerous factors, including changes in national norms. Department score/criteria for each health professions program is the following:

Program	TEAS Test Required? Y/N	Minimum Score

Radiologic Technology	Y	55%

What happens if a student does not achieve the minimum score?
